

Orlando wasn't just
any old cat.

He was a

Persian Black Smoke –

with long flowing fur
and large, amber eyes.

What's more, he lived in the biggest, grandest house in the village.

Each morning,
Orlando
would stand on a pedestal
while his owner,
Bertha Browne,
groomed
his fur.

Not a single hair could be left out of place.